

CONVERSATIONS

NUMBER 114
JANUARY 2022

1. We easily say 'Happy New Year'. What, for you, will make this New Year a happy one? Out of your hopes, what is in your power to make happen any of the things you'd like?
2. What has this pandemic taught you? In what ways can you change your life, have different and better ways of considering others? Has this done anything to give you a different view of the world?
3. Do you have any new plans for looking after the future quality of life for the Earth and those who will inherit the improvement or the damage we may do? Is there something simple you can do each day?
4. General intentions don't work – we know this. We need to be specific about our plans and hopes. If you can answer clearly the questions, what, where, when, who and how, you'll increase the likelihood of bringing about what you'd like to see.
5. Jesus came into a very troubled world and he remains with us. There never has been a golden age and every generation makes tempting comparisons about what's better and worse now from how things used to be. Every generation also worried about the next generation. What can you do for those who'll inherit our world?
6. Can you spend 5 minutes each day praying trustingly that you'll be open to what the Lord asks of you?
7. In 2022 will you decide to grumble less and smile more? It's not a daft suggestion.

Thank you
