

CONVERSATIONS

NUMBER 116
MARCH 2022

1. Where do you – and others at home – honestly stand in doing something to help the environment and protect and regenerate God's creation? Have you added to anything you do about this during the last month? Should you?
2. The current worrying situation with Russian presence around the Ukraine should concern us all. Do you pray about this, about things in the world that we hope will improve? Our prayer is part of the way we share our worries and can be part of the solution.
3. Where in the world would you like to live if money and distance were no problem? Would you prefer to have lived at some other time in history? Your reasons will say a lot about you and your values.
4. Do you interpret what you do with and for your family as part of your response to the Gospel and what God asks of us? This includes especially all the routine things that keep life ticking over. (The right answer is that you should!) Think about it.
5. Frequent storms require a response from us. While we keep dry and safe, do you help others who may have lesser means to have a quality of life that honours their human dignity and importance?
6. Do you read anything religious and spiritual? Is it enough? Would you like help to find suitable material? If so, please ask.
7. The Lord came to lift the downhearted. We are the ones entrusted with this now. Think about how you do it and to whom, when, and with what regularity?

Thank you
